Lifetime Prepping Stockpile: What You'll Need To Be Self Sufficient And Survive Past The First Year

Dale Brown

Maybe you have a 72 hour emergency supply of food, water, and other essentials.

You might even have enough supplies for a week...a month...or maybe longer.

But what if things never get back to normal and your stockpile runs out?

This prepper survival guide shows you what you need to know to become truly self-sustaining so you can survive for years and years after society collapses.

Discover...

- * The first step in becoming self sufficient.
- * What kind of animals should you raise?
- * The number one food storage supply you should be stocking up right now (not canning jars).
- * The inexpensive food flavoring that will be like gold after SHTF.
- * Why you should be just like grandma and learn this valuable skill.
- * Will your solar powered systems be toast if an electromagnetic pulse (EMP) hits? (Not if you store these items)
- * The easy task that only takes 5 minutes a day but will give you rich, plantable soil for years to come.
- * Why you should learn this tree-related skill if you want to be safe and have plenty of fruit.
- * If you will only be going to town once a month for supplies, then you need to get good at this old fashioned kitchen skill.

...and many more items and skills you should add to your survival preparations to be ready to survive for many years to come!
