The History of Abraham Lincoln, and the Overthrow of Slavery (Classic Reprint) Isaac Newton Arnold
But more than all, above all, that ever treasonable, cruel and barbarous institution of slavery, has been overthrown by the President, aided and seconded by you. It was for you to abolish forever, slavery at the National Capital; to prohibit it throughout all the Territories; to repeal the Fugitive Slave Laws; to put the sword into the hand of the slave, that he might achieve liberty for himself, his family, and his race; and it was for you to crown all by the Constitutional amendment, abolishing and prohibiting slavery throughout the Republic. You stood close and ever faithful to our great National Leader, during his eventful administration; and by your aid he was enabled to maintain the integrity of the Nation; to establish National unity based on universal liberty. Although many of you did not at first fully understand or appreciate the great, pure, honest, long-headed Statesman from the West, yet before he was so mysteriously removed, you had learned to love, honor, and respect him. His deeds and yours I have attempted on these pages to record. How imperfect the execution of the work, none can more fully appreciate than the author. I have quoted from your debates far less than IT rould have done, had space permitted. Of many of those from whose speeches my limits did not permit me to quote, I can only say, that, if what is given shall direct attention to those rich mines of eloquence and statesmanship to be found in those volumes of the Congressional Globe, which contain the complete records of your speeches and transactions, they who shall study those volumes will be richly compensated. In looking over your rqcords, I recall the names of many who left the forum for the camp and battle-field. A mong others there were Logan, Blair, Mc Clernand, Fouke, Marston, Van Wyck, Divin, Mc Kean, Curtis, Vandever, Dunn, and Baker, the martyred Senator. And in runni
