Supernatural in the Land of Count Dracula Valda Roric

This book takes the reader on a journey through the most haunted places of Romania, the land which was once ruled by Vlad the Impaler, the historic figure who inspired Bram Stoker to write his famous novel "Dracula". As the first attempt of its kind, many different types of supernatural phenomena are discussed within the pages of the present book. From haunted buildings and castles and up to mystic mountains and cursed waters, this text covers them all. The land of Count Dracula is listed among the most haunted countries on the planet and it has one of the most haunted capitals in the world. The current book records and presents the most famous hauntings and some of the most interesting supernatural phenomena. The first text of its kind, the current book offers information about all the types of strange phenomena taking place within the borders of Romania such as hauntings from around the country, haunted roads, phantom vehicles, castles and mansions with ghosts, sacred mountains, legendary lakes, forests inhabited by unknown forces, caves out of old myths, mystic places with supernatural histories, curses and enigmas from the depth of the earth, portals that link worlds, supernatural entities, supernatural phenomena, underground tunnels, discoveries on the brink of knowledge and local urban legends.
